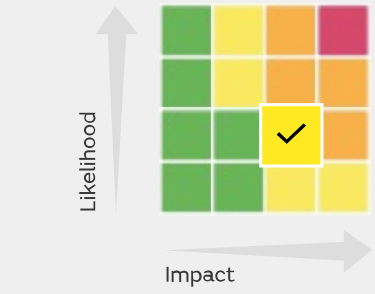
Storm Callum brings a spell of heavy and persistent rain on Friday, with the potential for flooding.

What to expect

- There is a chance that homes and businesses could be flooded, causing damage to some buildings, the greatest likelihood being in parts of south Wales and southwest England
- Spray and flooding is likely to lead to difficult driving conditions and some road closures. In Wales, fast-flowing or deep floodwater is possible
- Where flooding occurs, there is a chance of delays or cancellations to train and bus services
- There is a chance of power cuts and loss of other services to some homes and businesses

Further details

A zone of heavy rain will become slow-moving, bringing prolonged and often heavy rainfall. South Wales and southwest England may well see the greatest amounts but throughout the warning area, high ground exposed to the south and south west could see 50 to 100 mm by the end of the day. The rain will be accompanied by strong winds, and leaves and twigs, brought down by the wind, could block drains and culverts, increasing the likelihood of flooding.



Low likelihood of medium impacts
